There are many reasons why you should care for hens more so than other creatures. The reasons are as follows:

Healthy and great tasting eggs. Most animal lovers choose fish, cats and dogs as their pets, but these pets do not generate delicious, edible products as the eggs are.

Chickens have character. Each hen is different in its behavior. They have their own personality that may be fascinating. When owning chickens, it's important to enjoy their company as well as their offerings as much as you can.

Having hens living in your garden will help you maintain your everyday life. You're able to live your fast-paced life and match your daily life demands if you have hens in your garden.

Chickens could make your garden free and healthy from chemicals. These chickens love to walk around your garden. By doing this, they eliminate pests and dust by consuming them - such as little twigs, viruses, beetles, earwigs, etc. and at the same time, removing any harmful chemicals from your backyard that may be affecting your lifestyle.

They could consume your leftovers. Chickens are not picky when it comes to eating food. They could eat every little thing including your leftovers, so you don't have to be concerned about wasting your leftovers because you can give them to your birds. Instead of buying chicken food, you can give them your leftovers, this in turn saves you money. However, be mindful of giving chickens garlic and onion as this may affect the quality of their eggs.

Balances compost pile. Chickens are able to provide you with compost through the use of their poop. Eggshells can also help the soil - resulting in a fertile and rich earth.

Some of these chickens assist in eliminating grass and seeds. Once it is all removed, they'll be content as this allows them to search for yard debris.

Chickens require minimal maintenance. You don't need to give them a daily wash or comb. All you have to do is get their eggs and supply them with water. Their bedding should also be adjusted regularly.

Save birds from a manufacturing life. Factory raised chickens are treated unkindly. Raising chickens from home reduces the number of their deaths if they were to be found in a park or factory.
