Life in the Iron Mills Rebecca Harding Davis

Set in the factory world of the nineteenth century, Life in the Iron Mills is one of the earliest American realist works, and is an important text for those who study labor and women's issues. Immediately recognized as an innovative work, it introduced American readers to the bleak lives of industrial workers in the mills and factories of the nation.

Rebecca Harding Davis was considered one of the nation's first social historians and pioneering literary artists. She wrote to find social change for blacks, women, immigrants, and the working class throughout the Civil War. Life in the Iron Mills challenged traditional subjects and older styles of writing. Wheeling, Virginia's iron mills and immigrant populations inspired the setting of Life in the Iron Mills.
